

Holidays

There are so many holidays like New Year's Day, Valentine's Day, Independence Day, and Birthdays. I'm only going to talk about a few of them. The first one I'm going to talk about is New Year's Day. I like New Year's Day because I get to spend time with my family (only sometimes) on New Year's Eve. The thing I don't like about New Year's Day is I don't get to see the start of the New Year.

I think I'll talk about Independence Day next. The thing I like about Independence Day is that it's in the month of my birthday and I always get together with my part of my whole family. The thing that I don't like about Independence Day is I don't get to see the end of the fireworks.

Now you know there are lots of holidays, but I would like to make one of my own. →

The holiday I'm making will have 3 dates: March 18th, April 4th and May 29th. The holiday will be named Kids Rules Day. On Kids Rules Day kids can do anything they want like...um... they could stay in their pajamas all day and play or watch TV all day and have popcorn and other kinds of food or you could treat it like a normal day: get up, take a shower (if you need to), get dressed, play, and then go to bed. Kids can do even more stuff than the stuff I just wrote. Now before I end my story I'm going to talk about one more holiday. Can you guess what it is?

It's Christmas! The thing I like about Christmas is decorating the tree and opening presents. The thing I don't like about Christmas is that I'm a heavy sleeper and I don't get to hear the jingle bells of the sleigh. Now I think I have to end this story because I'm at the end of the year. The end
