

TEACHING METHODS

It is the desire of the School Committee that the best available strategies and methods for bringing about learning be utilized in the District's schools. The instructional staff is expected to keep abreast of new and more promising instructional ideas and practices developed in schools throughout the nation and to apply those which apparently have the potential for improving the learning program in the District's schools.

Strategies and methods shall be focused on the personalization of learning, including:

- (1) appraisal of individual learning style, abilities, disabilities;
- (2) assessment of individual learning needs;
- (3) development, implementation, and evaluation of individual learning programs; and
- (4) the modification and/or recycling of individual learning programs.
